NEW line of thought should always be welcomed. It is refreshing, to say the least of it. Editor & Publisher contains a rather lengthy article by Marlen [illegible]. It is good. Believing the readers of this column will be interested, a few of his thoughts, in the nature of excerpts from the entire article, are presented here-

"Each American community should offer some special attraction. Simple, natural effects are best. Civic pride demands a break in the monotony.

"I think of civic creations which are significant of the peculiar character or advantages of a city. No two cities or towns are exactly alike. Probably each has some point of individual character or interest capable of develop-

"I hold that there is a sound basis in the idea that standardized life in American communities should be broken up by some form of gaiety, stimulating civic pride and breaking down the barriers of social caste.

"Nothing is more deadly than stagnence in a community that offers no outlet for social and aesthetic aspirations of the rank and file but splits up with some nicely defined off from the really attractive side of life. America has more than any other nation made its cities and towns democratic and offering common advantages.

"Poor indeed is the community that does not boast a park, library, stadium, art gallery or some similar enterprise of and for all of the people. But I speak for a distinctive added fillip—some event or cause in original design that offers relief from the tiresome work-a-day routine, feeds the soul with fun or beauty, and gives to the populace a new and genuine reason for local boasting."

WE have some comments from one of our business men who has been watching oil development work in the Parisarea with a great deal of interest. But he is not the only one. Others are likewise interested and have been for some months.

During the past fifteen years we have had flurries of interest in the Parisarea in oil development, but the interest did not last long. This recent interest is of a more substantial nature and the determination seems to be more permanent.

[illegible] man contributing the paragraphs below is in perhaps better position to know just what is going on along this line than any other man in the county. His comments are interesting. Here are:

"First at this time there seems to be more oil activity in Lamar county than there has been in several years. There seems to be no production but what there is a showing of oil in the test made on the well being drilled by Doyle Jondreau, west of Deport. This has caused considerable action in leasing of land and there have been several leases changed hands at from two to five dollars per acre in this vicinity.

"The well on the Howison tract south of Bogata was progressing very well, unfortunately, a steel derrick collapsed. In spite of this, there is some trading of leases in the vicinity which is being engaged by people in Paris, Deport and Bogata, having the feeling that there is really something doing while in the vicinity.

"During the past week or ten days there have been numerous oil scouts from Oklahoma and West and South Texas visiting Paris on account of the showings that have been manifested in these various wells.

"It is understood that there is a block of acreage being assembled near Paris for another drill by one of the major companies. There has already been considerable activity in title work and will doubtless continue as the life of leases increases.

Indications Of Special Session Seen At Capitol

Two Proposals For Adjournment Pending

AUSTIN, May 19. (AP)—Rumblings of a special or an extended session were heard frequently in capitol corridors Tuesday as the legislature settled into the home stretch leading to adjournment at noon Friday.

Two proposals were pending in senate, one calling for an extension to May 29 and the other proposing that the houses stand recessed from May 22 to June 22 and then resume deliberations on bills not acted upon at the end of the present session. Doubt was expressed by several members in both the house and senate that either proposal would get very far it being reported there were 80 members in the house pledged to oppose any extension.

Regarded As Likely

While several regarded a special session as likely, it was generally believed it would not be called before next fall if the appropriation bills were disposed of by the end of the regular session. Representative Sanders of Nacogdoches, chairman of the house appropriation committee, said he believed agreements wolud be reached on the appropriation bills in time for action before Friday noon. The house Tuesday suspended the 72-hour rule to permit consideration of senate bills on second and third reading. With adoption of the suspension approximately 400 house bills were sent into the discard. Included in the bills was one to strengthen the oil proration powers of the railroad commission and another to legalize amateur boxing.

Proration Bill Opposed

The oil proration bill was introduced in a last minute effort to improve oil conditions. It was bitterly opposed by operators in the East Texas field.

Representative Davis' boxing bill was under consideration when the 72-hour ruling became effective. The motion to suspend the rule did not apply to house bills. Davis' motion to include pending business

LABOR PRESIDENT SAYS WAGE CUTS ARE 'FALLACIOUS'

Wiliam Green Says General Reduction In Wages Being Sought

HOUSTON, May 19. (AP)—The president of the American Federation of Labor, William Green, declared Tuesday that "American labor will stand uncompromising and immovable against all attempts to lower living standards through the imposition of reduction in wages."

Speaking before the triennial convention of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen here, Mr. Green described wage cuts as economically "fallacious," and said it had become the "solemn duty of the wage earners of the nation to resist with all power they possess" any such moves.

Described As Coercion.

The labor leader said statements he attributed to representatives of large banking interests had convinced "many representatives of labor" that a general reduction in wages was being sought. He added the statements come consecutively and thus were regarded by labor as "more than a coincident."

"Reports," he went on, "have reached the headquarters of the American Federation of Labor that some bankers have refused to extend credit to manufacturers unless they reduced wages. This is coercion of a most reprehensible character."

Against the argument that wage reduction might help industry, Mr. Green set up the situation in the bituminous coal fields of Ohio, West Virginia, Kentucky, Central and Western Pennsylvania and Maryland.

Here, he declared, there was a condition approaching upon bankruptcy and "the disaster which befell the bituminous coal industry dates from the time when the operators began to reduce wages."

Spanish Church Burned

Scenes like the one below were familiar sights in the new Republic of Spain as an aftermath of the recent riots by anti-clerical extremists. The picture, flown from Spain to London and radioed to New York, shows the smouldering ruins of the Church of the Jesuits, at Madrid, after rioting vandals had put it to the torch. Monarchist supporters of ex-King Alfonso were blamed for instigating the outrages.

NOTICES MAILED BY EQUALIZATION BOARD TO 1200

Tax Assessor Urges Aid Of Taxpayers In Facilitating Work

With the mailing of approximately 1,200 notices by the Board of Equalization to Lamar county taxpayers, Roy Cass, county tax assessor, urges individuals in receipt of the notices to appear at his office on designated dates to facilitate prompt service by the board. The notices were mailed to taxpayers who have asked for reductions in the valuations of their property.

Must Explain Requests

Taxpayers within the corporate limits asking for reduction will appear before the board on May 26, 27, 28 and 29; county taxpayers are called June 2, 3, 4 and 5; corporation representatives asking for reductions in valuations will appear on June 11 and 12. Taxpayers receiving notices will explain to the board why they have asked for reductions, Mr. Cass said.

Following the inquiries from several people relative to the notices, Mr. Cass Monday said neither he nor Joe Hillhouse, county clerk, had purisdiction over matters involved in the notices. It is entirely within the hands of the board members, the tax assessor said, and added that taxpayers would receive quicker and more satisfactory service if they appeared with their notices before the board on the date designated.

If the board, composed of the county judge and the four county commissioners, is convinced that sufficient justification exists for a reduction in property valuation, the reduction will be made, the tax assessor said.

"We are glad to render any possible service to the taxpayers but the reduction of property valuations is under the jurisdiction of the board of equalization," Mr. Cass said.

Personalities Behind The News

VARIED PROBLEMS CONFRONT LABOR UNIONS IN MEET

Unemployment, Working Conditions for Women And Groups Discussed

EL PASO, May 19, (AP)—Problems of unemployment, working conditions for women and organization were discussed at meetings of various state labor unions here Tuesday.

The annual convention of the Texas State Federation of Labor recessed temporarily to give affiliated groups opportunity to thresh out individual matters.

Ask Stand Against Attacks

A plea that organized labor stand firm against attacks from radical capital and unscrupulous persons was brought to the convention of the Allied Printing Trades Council of Texas by J. W. Parks of Dallas, president of the State Federation of Labor.

"Seldom has organized labor been confronted with more serious conditions of unemployment," he said. "We have weathered such conditions in the past, and will do so now."

He denounced capitalists and politicians who set up false issues before labor to divide it and get its votes.

"Must Organize"

"We must organize and allow nothing to disturb our solidarity," he said. "If we vote always with our economic welfare in mind we will have nothing to fear from big business or any one."

R. B. Gragg of Austin, state labor commissioner, told the same meeting that women and girls throughout the state were working for starvation wages.

He said a survey recently completed by his department revealed a girl with no dependents could not live decently on less than $14.72 a week. Fifty-two per cent of the working girls in Texas were getting less than that amount, he said.

Workmen Prepare to Muzzle Wild Gusher

CORPUS CHRISTI, May 19. (AP)—Gas masks and necessary equipment had been sent for as workmen prepared Tuesday night for an attempt to muzzle the Lawrence No. 2 Houston Oil Company well which blew out of control Tuesday and was spouting a huge volume of oil and gas high into the air.

The drill stem was blown from the hole, shattering a large steel derrick. No one was seriously injured, although several workers were temporarily overcome by gas during the day. Strict precautions were taken to prevent fire.

Pan-Europe Group Awaits Relief For Economic Situation

GENEVA, May 19, (AP)—Having poured their proposals for European economic reconstruction into a common pool, the members of the Pan-European commission Tuesday night entrusted to a subcommittee the formidable task of drafting a plan to bring relief from the prevailing economic situation.

This sub-committee was instructed to report Wednesday, if possible, in order to permit immediate concerted international action.

Asks Opinion on Union.

The league council, sitting Tuesday morning, formally asked the world court to give an advisory opinion upon legality of the proposed Austro-German customs union.

Although this disposed of the juridical aspect of this critical question for the time being, its political side still remains a possible occasion for vexing controversy.

The conflict over the Teutonic customs scheme now is recognized as the most disturbing dispute which has arisen among the great powers since the League of Nations was founded.

It was with this in mind that statesmen at Tuesday afternoon's conference called upon each other to combine in a common movement for economic relief.

Wheat Conference Awaits Decision Of Russia; Expected Today

LONDON, May 19 (AP)—Presented with a United States recommendation to solve the world's wheat problem by drastic reduction "at the source" the international wheat conference Tuesday night centered its attention on the declaration of Soviet Russia's position which is expected Wednesday.

Beauty on Trial.

NICE, France, May 19. (AP)—Mrs. James B. Nash, Overland, Mo., is expected to be the star witness for the defense of her former beauty queen daughter, Mrs. Charlotte Nixon-Nirdlinger, when she goes on trial Wednesday for the slaying of her husband last March 11.

TOURS, France, May 19. (AP)—Buried alive in a cave in which men of the stone age once lived, Brigadier General Robert H. Dunlap of the United States Marine Corps was the object Tuesday night of frenzied rescue efforts although hope that he had escaped death virtually had been abandoned.

An avalanche from a hilltop overlooking the Loire river engulfed Tuesday both the general and two farmer folk—man and wife—with whom he had been friendly.

May Take Three Days

It was estimated on Tuesday night that two or three days may elapse before the imprisoned trio can be reached. Mrs. Dunlap, who with her husband was preparing to visit the historic tower of Cinq Mars La Pile nearby, witnessed the tragedy and was in a state of near collapse Tuesday night.

Brigadier General Dunlap only a few weeks ago was transferred to Tours to perfect his studies of the French language. He and Mrs. Dunlap took particular delight in their acquaintance with the farmer Denis Briant, who lived in one of the rock hewn cave dwellings that survive the troglodyte age.

Rush to Aid

The officer and his wife were at the Briant's home Tuesday when, from a nearby barn where Madame Briant was engaged in her housework, they heard her scream. Simultaneously there was a thundering roar as the top of the precipice above their home began to split and topple over.

The two men rushed to Madame Briant's assistance but before they could reach her they were themselves engulfed as the avalanche increased in volume. Virtually the entire hillside above the region was affected before the slide of rock, earth and trees halted.

Eleven Americans Presented At Court

LONDON, May 19. (AP)—More than 400 women, including 11 Americans, Tuesday night were presented to King George and Queen Mary in the first court of the season. Their majesties sat on their great golden thrones in the ball room of Buckingham palace.

Great crowds assembled outside the palace to get a glimpse of the debutantes and matrons as they lined up in glistening limousines some hours ahead of time.

Wave of Crime Hits Washington; Add Extra Police

WASHINGTON, May 19. (AP)—seven dead by shooting and a hold up in the past three days impelled police to throw extra duty patrolmen on to the streets Tuesday night to combat crime in the capital.

John Cunningham, reputed to be a police informer died late Tuesday night after being shot in an alley earlier in the night as he was entering a rear door of his apartment Captain Edward J. Kelley of the homicide squad said he clearly was "put on the spot." He told detectives "they got me wrong" and said he did not know who did it.

One Victim May Live

An eighth revolver victim, Charles Garbett, manager of the exclusive Chanteclер night club, was said Tuesday by doctors at Emergency hospital to have a chance to live. He was shot through the right lung early Sunday by Robert S. Montgomery, socially prominent in New York and Boston, to whom he had refused a table.

Those dead were:

Jesse Taylor, a policeman, who attempted to block Montgomery's exit from the club.

Montgomery who committed suicide after shooting Taylor and Garbett.

Talley Day, a young gunman and bootlegger, who was shot through the brain Sunday in a speakeasy gambling quarrel.

Three negroes, one of them killed by a policeman.

FUNCHAL, Maderia, May 20.—(Wednesday)—(AP)—The Maderia Islands were shaken by an earthquake early today but no fatalities or damage has been reported.

Troops Dispatched To Combat Chinese Bandits' Activities

HANKOW, China, May 19. (AP)—The nationalist government dispatched armies into Hupeh and Anhwei provinces Tuesday to kill or disperse 20,000 bandits looting border areas of the two provinces.

Responding to appeals of the people whose towns and farms have been laid waste, the government postponed its campaign against the incipient rebellion in South China to war upon organized brigandage.

To Reinforce Troops

Troops which Monday scattered one communist army, said nationalist authorities, will be reinforced to engage three outlaw hordes. The bandits, with semi-imilitary organizations known as "Red armies" terrorized inhabitants with their show of cannon, field guns and thousands of rifles. Thousands of peasants fled.

Coincident with its bandit campaign, the government planned the purchase of 40 British airplanes to extend commercial air service. These will be equipped with machine guns to protect passengers.

Tremors in Portugal.

LISBON, May 20, (Wednesday) (AP)—Two sharp earth shocks were felt here early today, throwing the populace into panic. No casualties have been reported and the extent of the damage is unknown. The first shock occurred at 3:20 a. m., rocking furniture, shaking pictures from walls and tearing wide cracks in buildings. A few minutes later the second shock was felt, lasting ten seconds. It shook the capital severely.

NAME HENDERSON TO PRESIDE AT ARMS PARLEY

Site of Conference Not Decided; Geneva Believed Sure of Selection

GENEVA, May 19. (AP)—Arthur Henderson, foreign minister of Great Britain's labor government, was designated Tuesday night by the League of Nations council to preside over the world conference for limitation and reduction of armaments which begins February 2, 1932.

Henderson warmly thanked this colleagues for the honor, but said he must consult the British government before accepting.

No doubt was felt here, however, that he would be the directing chief of the conference.

Geneva Likely Site

The place for the conference had not been decided, but it was considered almost certain Tuesday night that Geneva would be selected Wednesday.

Henderson's selection as chairman was considered Tuesday night to be a testimonial to his steadily increasing prestige and popularity in the European world of international affairs. He attracted favorable notice by his skill and firmness in the chair at the league council session in January and his activities in behalf of an understanding between Italy and France have won friends for him in both countries.

Favored by Germany

By Germany, also, he is regarded as a sincere well-wisher and well-doer.

It was felt here it would be a huge advantage to have in the chair a representative of one of the great powers, with the influence of his country and government behind him.

Passengers Escape Injury; 6 Cars Leave Rails

WAYNOKA, Okla., May 19, (AP)—James Taliaferro, Amarillo, engineer of the Santa Fe crack train, The Missionary, bound from California to Chicago, was killed Tuesday night when the locomotive and six baggage and refrigerator express cars overturned 26 miles southwest of here.

Six passenger coaches did not leave the tracks, according to the railroad's agents at Waynoka and Quinlan. A few passengers were reported shaken up, but not seriously injured.

Fireman Jumps to Safety

James Crews, Amarillo, fireman, jumped from the locomotive and saved his life.

A wrecker left here for the scene and another was reported on its way from Amarillo, division headquarters of the road.

Plans were made to reroute the passengers by way of Woodward to Hammon Junction, where connections were to be made with the Orient branch of the Santa Fe.

Cause of the wreck was unknown.

The Santa Fe agent at Quinlan reported Taliaferro's body was buried underneath the wrecked locomotive.

AMARILLO, May 14, (AP)—The train, eastbound, which was wrecked Tuesday night near Waynoka, Okla., left Amarillo at 1:40 p. m.

J. G. Taliaferro, engineer, who was killed, lives at 3300 Polk street, Amarillo. It is believed he has no relatives here. His daughter, Mrs. Bradley Kimbrough, lives at McAllen, Texas, and a son, Robert, lives at Long Beach, Cal. Taliaferro was about 55 years old. It is believed there are one or two other children who could not be located immediately.

A wrecker was sent out from here immediately.

Hoover Hopes To Avert Tax Hike

WASHINGTON, May 19. (AP)—Through his economy program, President Hoover hopes to cut government expenditures to such an extent that a tax increase will be unnecessary.

By paring down outlays of the various government departments he expected to save from $125,000,000 to $150,000,000 next year with other reductions in succeeding years.

Two Make Cuts

Since the program was begun, two departments—the war and interior—have adopted retrenchment plans and three others—the treasury, postoffice and agriculture have been ordered to make surveys to ascertain where savings might be effected.

One of the three latter departments will be studied this weekend at President Hoover's Rapidan camp. It was there on previous week-ends that decisions were reached on the interior and war department economies.

In line with the program, the army general staff has enlisted co-operation of the separate branches of infantry, field artillery and quartermaster's corps to assist in consideration of army posts that might be eliminated.

Between 90 and 100 posts are under consideration. Previously it had been announced that 20 to 30 army posts would be abandoned.

Negro Wounded In Honey Grove Clings to Life

There have been no further developments following the shooting of Nobb Morgan, Honey Grove negro who ran amuck Saturday afternoon, slugging a police officer with his revolver and shooting a bystander in the leg. Tuesday afternoon at the home of his father, Morgan was resting well and may recover from the numerous wounds inflicted by the posse which captured him.

Following the shooting and wounding of Raymond Nash, Morgan ran to the Texas and Pacific depot in Honey Grove and took refuge in a box car. The quickly formed posse followed him to the rail road tracks. Morgan ran back and forth across the door of the box car sending shots in the direction of the posse. Finally he was dislodged from his refuge by a fusilade of shots from revelvers and shot guns. The negro was badly wounded, his body, his face and hands and legs being liberally sprinkled with buckshot.

Officer's Memory Leads to Capture Alleged Murderer

SAN FRANCISCO, May 19. (AP)—A man identified by police as George W. Perry, alias Frank J. Moran, known as the "marrying brakeman," wanted in Eagle River, Wis., for the murder of Cora Belle Hackett was in city prison here Tuesday night because the man "with the best memory in the police department" likes detective stories.

Moran, as he was known here, is business agent for the International Brotherhood, a communist organization, and figured in an automobile collision recently. Inspectors James Johnson and Richard Hughes went to Moran's office to get his version of it. While talking to him Johnson, the man with the good memory, took mental notes.

Detective Story Addict

"Bald head. Deep chin dimple. Ear lobes close to neck. Scar under right eye. One eye covered by cataract." These were the notes tucked away in the detective's mind.

Monday Johnson was reading a detective story magazine, all about Perry and the six women he had "married," only one of them legally, all about the murder of Cora Belle Hackett, July 6, 1930, near Lac Du Flambeau, Wis., and a photograph of Perry was in the magazine.

FARM NEWS OF THE WEEK

SEE NEW RECORDS FOR VEGETABLE, FRUIT OUTPUT

More Than Ten Thousand Cars Already Moved To Market

AUSTIN, May 19.—New records will be hung up this year for shipments of government-inspected fruits and vegetables from Texas to eastern markets, W. A. Canon, marketing chief in the state department of agriculture, said today.

More than 10,000 cars already have been moved to market under inspection and before the end of the year the total may be more than 30,000 cars, Canon said. The 1930 total was 13,046 cars—only slightly in excess of the total for the first four months of 1931.

Rapid expansion of the areas devoted to commercial fruit and vegetable production and a growing recognition of the advantages of government shipping point inspection were held responsible for this unprecedented growth.

Shipping point inspection, under supervision of the Texas and U. S. departments of agriculture, is for grade standards. The inspection certificate is now recognized as a part of the contract between buyer and seller, and this feature has proved a boon to the grower.

Canon explained that on a declining market, the market price of a commodity might decline before the shipment reaches the eastern buyer. This buyer, unwilling to pay more than the market price, could claim the shipment failed to measure up to standards in the contract, and refuse to pay the agreed price.

Courts have recently upheld a new federal statute, however, holding that the government inspection established the grade when the commodity was shipped, and that the buyer must pay the price agreed upon at the time of shipment. Growers have been quick to take advantage of this guaranty and this has been in part responsible for the remarkable increase in the inspection service.

Inspection also has done much to stabilize the industry by fixing standards, giving Texas growers an opportunity to establish a reputation for high quality products, the marketing chief declared.

Prior to inspection, many growers shipped without regard to condition of their product or its grade. Now, with the large volume of production growers have learned the wisdom of shipping only first grade products, and the government inspection certificate is the most widely recognized instrument attesting the highest grade standards. There is an increasing tendency to discard all except first grade products for shipment, Canon said.

While a large part of the truck crops from the Lower Valley and Winter Garden areas has moved to market, north Texas crops are yet to be shipped. An inspection station was established this week in the Sugarland-Eagle Lake-Wharton district for potato growers, who are starting their crop to market. Tomato shipments are barely under way, and the northern crops of melons, onions and potatoes are not yet ready. Many cars of mixed vegetables are still moving out of the valley, and a bumper citrus crop, estimated by some as high as 8,000 to 10,000 carloads, is yet to be harvested.

Preparations Made For June Meet Of State Plant Board

AUSTIN, May 19.—Expecting the largest number of applications in the history of the certification program, the division of planting seed certification in the department of agriculture this week laid plans for the meeting here June 2 of the State Plant Board.

This board passes upon applicants for licenses for the production of certified seed. Applicants approved by the board will be eligible to inspection on their acreage devoted to growing planting seed this summer. All approved applications are placed with the commissioner of agriculture for inspection, inspections being made along those lines which conform to recognized standards necessary in the maintenance of varietal purity and mechanical qualifications.

More than 13 application forms were mailed this week—the largest number ever mailed out, according to R. V. Miller, chief of certification work. Last year, Miller said, about 15 were mailed. All applications must be returned by June 1, so that they may be passed upon by the board.

Three classes of seed are now recognized—cotton seed, small grain, and grain sorghums. There has been a large increase in the number of applicants for certification in the latter class, as these seed have been certified for only a comparatively short time. Cotton seed breeders have constituted the bulk of the certified seed growers in the past.

Members of the state plant board are Dr. E. P. Humbert, chairman, director of the department of genetics at A. & M. college; W. D. Harris, Ellis county farmer, and J. M. Del Curto, state entomologist.

At the THEATERS

At the Lamar

A thriller of the first water is "Drums of Jeopardy" the Tiffany picturization of Harold MacGrath's famous novel. It not only slings thrills, terror and suspense around with an utter disregard for how much excitement you can stand, but it contains a neat blending of romance and comedy. It remains through Thursday at the Lamar Theatre.

Warner Oland heads the cast in a typical Oland role—that of a man devoting all his time and a diabolical cunning to the destruction of a family, one member of which brought sorrow and death to his daughter. Not knowing which of the four men was responsible he makes sure he will get the right one by getting them all, but one escapes him, and that is Prince Nicholas, played engagingly by Lloyd Hughes. Nicholas supplies the romance by falling in love with the pretty American girl whose apartment he breaks into at night.

He is fleeing from Karlov, the avenger, and finds himself between the devil and the deep blue sea when the girl takes him for a burglar and pulls her gun on him with a I'm-not-afraid to shoot air. But he convinces her that protection is all he wants—and from that hour her fate is inextricably entangled with his. The role is played charmingly by June Collyer.

Other roles are capably portrayed by George Fawcett, Hale Hamilton, Wallace MacDonald, Mischa Auer, Clara Blandick and Florence Lake.

The title of the story comes from a necklace from which are suspended four little figures of East Indians beating a drum, the head of which is set with a costly ruby. If the drums should be detached and sent to that person, it is an omen of death. Karlov uses them as his warning that, somehow, somewhere, before twenty-four hours have gone, another Petroff will have been sacrificed to his lust for revenge.

"The Drums of Jeopardy" is earnestly recommended as an entertaining thriller.

At the Plaza

Gloria Swanson in "Indiscreet", which opened Tuesday at the Plaza theatre, finds a way to overcome that situation with a highly colorful dramatic performance providing good entertainment with a decided emphasis. The film brings to mind the star's earlier success, "The Trespasser" having a central character who risks her happiness to save another from heartbreak. It all comes about because of a former admirer of shallow affections, who gets himself engaged to the girl's young sister.

The story was written especially for the star by De Sylva, Brown and Henderson, famous picture producers and composers, who with this production make their bow in the dramatic field. The two numbers written by them especially for Miss Swanson—"Come to Me" and "If You Haven't Got Love"—permit the star to demonstrate once again that she has one of the most engaging voices in pictures. A splendid supporting cast appears with Miss Swanson. It comprises handsome debonair Ben Lyon, who turns in a fine performance opposite Miss Swanson; Monroe Owsley as the "menace"; Barbara Kent and Arthur Lake to whose lot falls the comedy-making, and Maude Eburne, Nella Walker and Henry Kolker.

Leo McCarey directed the star in her current offering. "Indiscreet" is fine entertainment and decidedly well worth seeing.

Agent Suggests Saving Clover Seeds For Fall

With the abundance of wild clover growing in Lamar county which within the next week or ten days will be matured, A. L. Edmiaston, county agent, suggests the seed be gathered and saved until late summer or early autumn and scattered over the pasture. All varieties of clover are producing a large crop of seed this year because of the unusually mild winter, the county agent said. Those farmers wishing a scattering of clover over their bermuda grass pastures may do so at little cost, Mr. Edmiaston said.

Wild vetch—commonly called wild pea or turkey pea—a legume which makes excellent pasture crop, also is becoming scattered over Lamar county, the county agent said. Wild vetch, which comes up earlier and seeds when Bermuda grass makes a luxuriant growth, is a valuable soil-builder and excellent addition to the permanent pasture.

Varieties of clovers and grass best adaptable to various soils in Lamar county can be learned from the county agent or at the pasture meets which he is directing throughout the county. Inspection and discussion of relative merits, as well as identifying marks, of clovers and grasses, is included at these pasture meets.

Produce Grown At Home Fills His Automobile

LAGRANGE, May 19—Because he didn't have enough room in six cylinder car to bring two of his neighbors to town, Louis Giese of Warda community, Fayette county, came to town complaining the other day. Asked the reason he pointed to a back seat filled with 54 heads of home-grown lettuce that he sold for seven cents per head. Fresh pork and hams from a hog killed the previous day and which were contracted for at $5.45 took up some more room, and 45 dozen eggs worth $6.29 filled up the rest. In his pocket he held a check for $30 for whole milk delivered during the month. He is a dairy herd and poultry flock demonstrator who is also clearing out scrub brush to make way for permanent pastures which he is sowing in a pecan bottom whose trees have been topped and budded to improved varieties.

Pays Fine For Smuggling Yams

The necessity of a careful search of foreign vessels arriving at U. S. ports to guard against the entry of contraband plants and products, which might bring with them insects or diseases, is emphasized by a recent incident at Mobile, Ala., Lee A. Strong, chief of the plant quarantine and control administration, U. S. department of agriculture, said today.

When the British schooner Arthur J. Balfour arrived at Mobile recently, both the captain and the steward stated that they had no plant material fruits or vegetables. When customs officers returned to search the vessel J. Robbins Wood, inspector of the plant quarantine and control administration, stationed at Mobile, accompanied them and with their assistance found a Jamaican yam hidden on deck near the steward's galley. This led to the finding of seven other yams in the hold of the vessel near the bow. One of the latter was wrapped neatly in a sack, rewrapped with paper, and addressed to a woman in Mobile.

In view of the evident intent to smuggle these yams, Mr. Wood appeared before the United States commissioner at Mobile and swore out a warrant for the master of the vessel, charging him with bringing yams from a foreign country in violation of federal quarantine No. 29. The master pleaded guilty and paid a fine of $20.

Butterfat Inspectors Get Good Cooperation From Creamery Owners

AUSTIN, May 19—Farmers and dairy owners alike are welcoming the newest service of the state department of agriculture, the inspection of butterfat tests at cream stations, according to M. S. Fraze, chief of the weights and measures division.

The first few weeks of inspection, Fraze said, found all creameries cooperating with state inspectors to the fullest. The state operations, he said, favored the tests because they gave farmers who sell cream renewed confidence in the stations.

Four inspectors have been assigned to the work, instructed to cover as much of the state as possible before the beginning of the next biennium on Sept. 1. They are operating under an emergency measure passed by the present legislature.

The inspectors make original tests of butterfat content from cream brought to the station while they are present, check up the methods and devices regularly used at the stations they visit, and check their findings against previous tests made by each station.

STRAWBERRIES OF GOOD QUALITY; YIELD IS SMALL

Weather Cuts Crop to 60 Per Cent, Says County Agent

BY A. L. EDMIASTON
County Agent

While strawberries were later than usual this year, the quality was better. The dry weather which prevailed last summer damaged the stand, cutting the crop to about 60 per cent of last year. Prices have averaged about 35 per crate for pints and from $2.25 to $3.50 for quarts. The yield has averaged more than 75 or 80 crates per acre.

Other truck crops, including cabbage, turnips, beets, carrots, spinach, mustard and green onions are about as early as usual. However, the unfavorable weather during the spring and late winter has retarded the growth somewhat. Insect damage has been much heavier than usual. This has been due to the fact that weeds and grass which insects ordinarily feed upon have made a rather slow growth. The insects have attacked the young crops.

One of the most important factors in successful truck growing is the proper selection and grading of produce for market. The greater part of the produce that has been marketed in Paris this year has proved the fact that Lamar county truck growers have learned to use proper methods of preparing their produce for market. Practically all the produce sold by local truckers has been of uniform quality this year.

Edmiaston, Lamar county agent. All farmers interested in attending the tour are requested to communicate with the county agent.

The tour from Ft. Towson to Grant is one phase of the annual potato tour originating on Monday, May 25, at Idabel under the direction of the extension department of Oklahoma A. and M. college. The purpose of the tour is to study potato diseases, cultural methods, seed varieties and fertilizers.

Among those attending the tour will be several of the recognized potato growers of the north, representatives of the department of agriculture at Washington, the Oklahoma State Market Commission and the A. and M. college at Stillwater.

Those individuals interested in the Choctaw county tour, which is recommended by Mr. Edmiaston, are urged to notify the county agent. The tour will be concluded at noon at Grant, Okla.

Develop Pasture Of Native Grass

DALLAS, May 19.—The blackland of Dallas county is equal acre for acre in carrying capacity to any pasture land in Texas when sowed to the native grasses found on the farms and roadsides of the county, declares W. T. Sharp who has developed on his farm in Garland community one of the best permanent pastures to be found in that section of Texas. On 15 acres sowed to mesquite grass, wild rye, rescue grass and burr clover Mr. Sharp has supported 12 head of cows, 6 work animals and 50 to 60 head of hogs throughout the year, and the pasture is still furnishing excellent grazing. The brood sows are in good condition and it has not been necessary to feed them any grain for the last two months.

A. B. Jolley, county agent, points out that many blackland farmers have Bermuda and other grass pastures that can be developed into permanent pasture by sowing the present sod with native wild rye, rescue grass, burr clover seeds obtained. The methods used in establishing the demonstration pasture. He got mesquite grass seed from a neighbor's pasture in the fall of the year after a heavy rain, the seed off from which deposited seed in small drifts. The wild rye and rescue grasses were cut from the public highways, allowed to dry and were scattered over the pasture on a windy day. The burr clover, cut from a neighbor's lot, was sowed in the same way as the grasses.

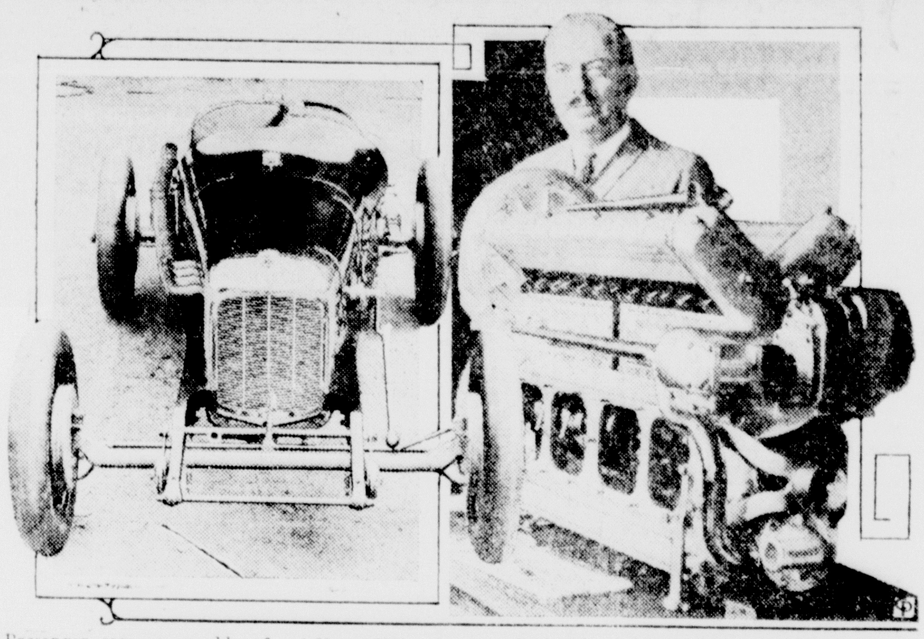
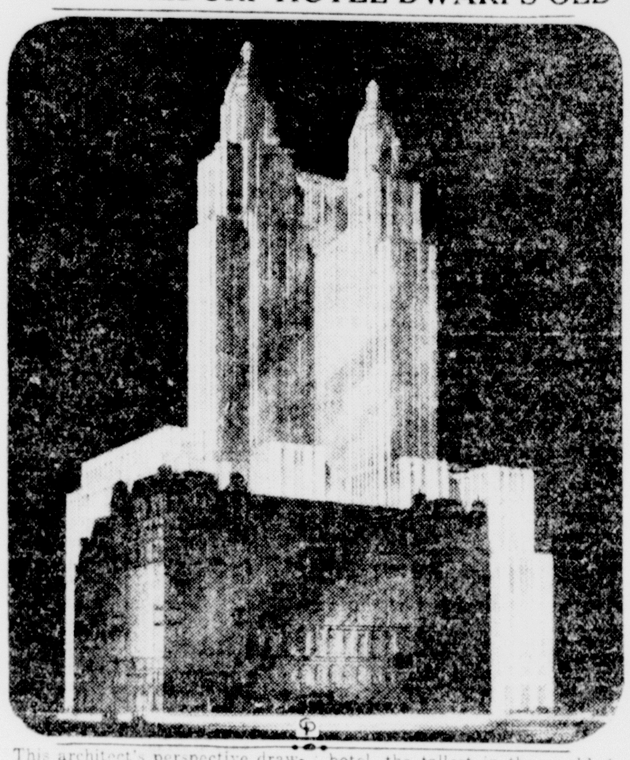
FORERUNNERS OF 100-MILE-AN-HOUR STOCK CARS



Passenger cars as capable of a speed of 100 miles an hour as your present car can touch 60 are prophesied for the near future by Harry Miller, Los Angeles builder of race car motors. Developments tested in today's racing cars point to such stock car speeds for the future, Miller contends. A two-seater Miller racing car is shown left with a Miller high-speed motor at the right.

NEW WALDORF HOTEL DWARFS OLD



This architect's perspective drawing gives an idea of the contrast in size between the famous old Waldorf-Astoria, in New York City, and the new Waldorf, which will open its doors on Oct. 1. The old Waldorf, which was opened in 1893, and the Astoria, built four years later, operated jointly as the Waldorf-Astoria, was 16 stories at its highest point. The new hotel, the tallest in the world, is 47 stories and also has twin towers. The old hotel had an area of 69,475 square feet, the new has an area of 81,337 square feet. The old hotel, at Fifth avenue and 34th street, was torn down to make way for the Empire State building; the new one is farther uptown, at Park avenue and 49th and 50th streets.

With many chuckles he relates an experience in 1913 when the federal reserve was a live topic. Traveling from Washington to New York, he observed a man in front of him reading a front page story in a New York newspaper with the name of the Secretary of the Treasury in the headlines.

Suddenly the reader turned.

"Did you ever see such a fool as this secretary of the treasury we have at Washington?" he asked.

"No I never did," was the McAdoo reply. "I happen to know him quite intimately and you have sized him up just right."

The two then started a conversation and finally the stranger handed McAdoo his card with a request for his name.

"Certain, my name is McAdoo. I am the unfortunate secretary of the treasury."

As his companion seemed speechless, McAdoo added:

"Please don't for a moment feel uncomfortable. I like a good joke on myself and I can't tell you how much I have enjoyed this one. Don't take back anything and don't feel the least embarrassment."

French Expert Says He Favors Free Wheeling

"My opinion is definite; it is a perfection that should be generalized."

That is how Marc Chauvierre, noted European automotive authority, expressed his approval of Studebaker's free wheeling with positive gear control in a recent issue of La Vie Automobile, leading French motor car journal, according to Hugh Palmer, Studebaker dealer here.

"Chauvierre's article followed a comprehensive test run in a new Studebaker President eight sedan. The test also embraced such significant factors as speed, braking, acceleration, comfort and economy. In his discussion of free wheeling with positive gear control, the writer said further:

"'I drove the car both with and without free wheeling. For one thing, the operation of the gear change is considerably simplified. Using the clutch is needless. You drive at 80 kilometers an hour, lift your foot and pass the gears into second (speed) with one finger. Naturally there is no more need of double clutching. At last, here is the dreamed of driving facility for women.

"'For another thing free wheeling provides a very noticeable economy in gasoline and oil. Example: in going out, free wheeling, we used 22 litres of gasoline for 100 kilometers. Coming back, without free wheeling, the gasoline consumption was slightly above 26 litres'."

Clerf of Philadelphia had operated on the boy's larynx which had been closed by scar tissue which formed after a siege of diphtheria. Photo shows him phoning his mother to convince her that he really could talk.

CLUB MINSTREL GIVEN TUESDAY

Large Audience Sees 'Dixie Gloom Chasers' At Paris High School

To an audience which filled the lower floor of the Paris high school auditorium, the Hi-Y club presented "The Dixie Gloom Chasers" and "The Dixie Cabaret" written by Murrell Adams Jr., of Paris, Tuesday night with high school students as the performers.

The minstrel opened with the Dixie Gloom Chasers singing four popular songs. Murrell Adams was interlocutor. End men, who were John B. McEwin, William Shirley, Crawford Haynes and W. P. Denman carried the humor of the first act. Clever jokes were told on well known students and teachers. Each of the end men sang. The boys were dressed in white suits and the girls in beach pajamas.

Gene Belew Sings

Gene Belew, the balladist of the minstrel, sang a solo in this first act. Mozelle Trumble and Moreen Nobles also sang. Both Miss Trumble and Miss Nobles have expressive voices and were applauded everal times by the audience.

A big fat, black negro slumped on to the stage wearing black and white striped silk pants and a loud shirt and tie. He proved to be none other than Van Gillam, soloist of the minstrel who sang "St. Louis Blues".

For the second act a cabaret with Thomas Beauchamp, Jr., as host was given. The entertainment for the guests of the host was begun with a tap chorus by Sara Jane Campbell, Norma Lee Campbell and Elaine Adams. This was followed by a toe tap dance presented by Edith Goode. Nellie Anderson entertained the cabaret guests with two whistling solos.

Mary Elizabeth Van Glahn gave a toe ballet dance. This was followed by another dance by the tap chorus. Carter Anderson and Nellie Anderson, entertained with a sonk skit, "How Come You Do Me Like You Do?" A toe tap duet which was given by Elaine Adams and Norma Lee Campbell preceded the finale with Billie Karl Adams. Little Miss Adams tap danced while the other members of the cast formed a background, part of them tap dancing with her.

The minstrel was directed by Mrs. J. W. Love. Miss Frances Pritchard and Miss Vera Wooldridge played piano and violin accompaniments.

in the suspension was ruled out of order. The bill would have authorized non-profit organizations to stage title bouts and charge admissions. Contestants would have been rewarded with medals and trophies cash prizes being barred.

Highway Patrol Increase

An amendment by Representative McCombs of Dallas to repeal the anti-prize fight statutes was ruled out on a point of order. McCombs termed the Dempsey-Tunney fight as a "pink tea affair," compared to the average wrestling match.

A free conference report increasing the personnel of the state highway patrol from 50 to 100 men was adopted by both houses. The report also provided that 20 license and weight inspectors could be used in patrol work, bringing total personnel to 120 officers and men.

A last minute effort to bring up the highway bond issue resolution will be made Wednesday, Representative Hubbard of New Boston said. The resolution to permit the electorate to vote on the $212,000,000 bond issue constitutional amendment has failed of submission twice, the last time by only five votes. Several who supported the bond issue on previous occasions were reported to have switched over and indicated they would vote against it.

The house passed a senate bill to establish a state criminal insane hospital, adding an amendment to establish the unit in connection with the main prison at Huntsville. Other senate bills passed and sent to the governor were:

Validating surveys of towns and cities to eliminate vacancy suits.

Making throwing of "stink bombs" in public places a misdemeanor.

Persons now having title to the land under Oklahoma laws would be charged $1 per acre, $1 registration fee for each tract and 15 cents per acre for title examination by the land board. Taxes owing to Oklahoma and its subdivisions would be cancelled; vendor's liens and mortgages now in effect would be validated. The tract comprised approximately 28,000 acres.

Title to a large portion of the land has been claimed by Gus Wortham of Houston.

Recodification of statutes regulating sale and lease of state lands was passed by the senate.

A bill to liberalize leasing requirements on land of the university of Texas was passed. It will permit leases to be made in blocks of 6,000 acres on a ten year basis. It also will allow leases to be made by public auction instead of by sealed bids. It has been passed by the senate.

Both houses adopted a free conference report on a bill to limit compensation of delinquent tax collectors to 15 per cent.

WHAT'S WRONG WITH TEXAS

READ all the Texas newspapers for a month including editorials and "letters from the people," and you might come to the conclusion that the state has gone to pot. If, however, you enlisted the aid of a staff of Philadelphia lawyers, the chances are you'd have pointed out to you a very significant thing: Texas differs from most states because many of her ills are self-inflicted" sums up the Editorial Digest, Houston, recently and continues the discussion as follows:

"Ninety per cent of the editorial wailing is founded in one or another of countless objections to our tax policy (Some editors call it "lack of policy".) Almost as great a percentage of popular complaints is similarly grounded. Wipe the inequalities, the injustices, the discriminations and the absurdities from our tax laws and it seems we will have wiped away the pallor of economic ailment and faced ourselves forward upon the highroad to robust health and happiness.

"Whatever may be our attitude upon the cigarette and gas tax bills, we must admit they were railroaded through the present legislature as more or less makeshift bridges to span a revenue emergency. Expediency, then, may be one of the fundamental faults of our tax structure. Whatever may be our attitude in the sulphur tax controversy, we must confess that some foe of that natural resource industry is prosecuting a private feud through legislative channels. Partisanship, therefore, becomes a second inherent fault in tax legislation.

"Neither expediency nor partisanship should be tolerated in the building of a tax system for a great commonwealth. They are opposed to the constitutional principles of equality; they defy the fundamental concepts of democratic government.

"A sane, sound tax system must be built scientifically and impartially; it must be equal and uniform in its distribution of the burden; it must avoid carefully the taints of confiscation and favoritism; it must be fair.

"We can't evade the self-evident truth that it costs money to operate the government of the State of Texas. We can't even evade the fact that this necessary expense will increase with the population and the multiple problems of government. The legislature shouldn't be criticized too severely, if harrassed and bewildered, it errs in its tax policies; it should be remembered that few of its members pretend to be tax experts.

"Probably the fault for our tax muddle lies with business and industry. They are quick to show the legislature why this tax, or that should not be passed; but seldom out of their experience and understanding, do they offer a constructive suggestion as to how needed funds can be raised.

"Business and industry upon the one hand, and the legislature, upon the other, should meet under different circumstances. The legislature should say: "We need so many millions of dollars for the next biennium." And business and industry should say: "Here is a tax schedule which will raise the money you need; we won't fight this bill, we will support it. We are agreeing among ourselves that the burden is equitably distributed."

"Then, in no more hours than it takes days, the legislature could pass its appropriation and revenue bills and go home; business and industry would be spared the expense of costly lobbies; the state would be saved thousands of dollars of legislative expense.

"Even more important business and industry would feel confident and secure; the spirit of uneasiness would depart; we could go about our business of producing, and selling, and manufacturing, undisturbed; and much of what's wrong with Texas would disappear."

GLORY ENOUGH FOR ALL

THERE seems to be a studied effort in some quarters to exalt Aviator Bernt Balchen at the expense of Admiral Byrd now that their polar flight is history and rapidly becoming ancient history so fast is the succession of events in the development of aviation.

Partisan comparisons are not originating with either of the two principals, that is sure, for both have manifested heroic qualities and a high degree of stamina and skill, and they have always worked harmoniously together and been unstinted in their praise of each other.

Upon his return from the South Pole, Admiral Byrd conducted himself in the heroic and modest fashion of Admiral Schley after the battle of Santiago, when he pronounced those immortal words, "There is glory enough for all."

Balchen has always modestly discounted his own contribution to the success of the polar expedition, and even now, adds his tribute to Byrd.

The whole unpalatable situation demonstrates the danger of pouring cold water over warm admiration for the living great. There are too many contemporaries of the events concerned to step forward to brand the "de-bunking" as bunk.

ALL OF US

By Marshall Mashin

ARE YOU A JOHNSON? MAYBE YOU ARE ONE A JOHNSON STANDS BY HIS FRIENDS

A JOHNSON is loyal to his friends. He will not allow you to say one word against them.

A Johnson is generous; he will send you his last cent when you are in trouble. He will bring himself, too, even though it mean crossing a continent to your rescue.

A Johnson will tell the truth for you; he will not lie for you; he will even keep silent for you; and an enemy might pull out his tongue with red-hot pincers before he would betray you.

Marshall Mashin

The most precious thing in all the world to a Johnson is being "right," is playing square, is being loyal and brave and true. There aren't many Johnsons in the world; you'd hardly expect to find many, would you? Their standard is so high that few men indeed can live up to it — But the Johnsons who do exist live sternly and tenaciously by their creed; because they know there's not much left for man in this world if he ceases to be loyal to his friends and, through them, to himself.

Where do you find Johnsons? Almost anywhere, in curious places, but the name itself came in life where you'd least expect to find it.

From the underworld. Among lawbreakers of a generation ago. A Johnson was an aristocrat among criminals. I've been told a Johnson was a robber who rode the rods and cracked open safes in country towns ..... Eventually it was used to describe only a man who could be trusted and who had "character," who would send you his "roll" of you needed money and would cut you out of jail if you needed freedom, who would demand as much character from you as he himself poossessed. They were men gone wrong, who had taken the wrong road. They were dangerous fellows and of course they were few. There's some truth in the saying: "There's no honor among thieves—they're just like other people."

But occasionally there was a Johnson who had what all men call Honor, wherever they may happen to find it. I know one of these Johnsons—who was a thief once, but is one no longer. He despises all the little thieves who cheat and lie and betray and have no character and could be never be Johnsons—as he despises all men, everywhere, who will not stand by their friends, and have not character enough even to stand by themselves. He was a Johnson; he is still a Johnson.

To be a Johnson means to be strong and fine, and I'd be proud if anybody, at any time, ever hinted that I was even a distant relation of the Johnson family. If you're not a Johnson you cringe and crawl. If you ARE a Johnson you stand straight and strong though the world fall into ruins all about you. It means a great deal in this life for a man to be a Johnson.

Who's Who—Timely Views

PRISON SYSTEM VIEWED IN DANGER OF COLLAPSE DUE TO PRESENT EVILS

By Ogden H. Hammond

Chairman, National Prison Emergency Committee

THERE will be no abatement of crime in America until there is a thorough nation-wide reorganization of our prison system.

Present evils in the handling of prisoners will break down the prison system in this country if they are permitted to continue.

When that time comes our legal, social and economic structure will disappear.

Old and inadequate prisons are holding thousands, but how long they can hold them is questionable. It is well to remember, too, that if prisons can be broken out of—and jail deliveries have ceased to be a novelty in America—they also can be broken into. They are not impregnable forts. An increasing criminal population on the outside, allied in sympathy and spirit with the criminal population on the inside has shown repeatedly that it will stop at nothing.

At the present rate of crime increase in this country, honest judges are facing a day when they may no longer be able to commit men guilty of felonies to penal institutions, because overcrowded prisons will not be able to receive them. In some states today, because of the terribly crowded conditions of the prisons, men are receiving probation from our courts who should not be at large. When the prison population is greater than the facilities with which to house it, anything can happen—and anything may happen.

A state of war between organized crime and law-abiding citizenry now exists in this country. Crime prevention is not adequate to the problem, and we are failing even to control criminals.

While boys and girls are learning to admire the Al Capones, adult America is developing a cynicism toward criminality that completes the menace. We have come to believe that "rackets" are necessary and we accept them as part of our twentieth century development, just as we accept the radio, the talking picture and other scientific advancements.

STAR LORE

A STAR TO BECOME ACQUAINTED WITH

A SPLENDID naked-eye star Arcturus—should be located by beginning star gazers during May, June and July. (You need a reliable star map for finding stars). In June it is close to the meridian in the evening. It has a redish color. Arcturus is 41 light years distant or 41 times 6 trillion miles.) Its diameter is great—25,000,000 miles. When we recall that the diameter of the sun is less than one million miles, the immensity of Arcturus' diameter begins to dawn upon us. The volume or amount of space occupied by Arcturus is 26,000 times greater than the sun's volume. The sun has 1,500,000 times the volume of the earth.

SPEAKING OF "DEAD" LANGUAGES—!

Along Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK—An enterprising chemist has perfected a process for investing book pages with a subtle fragrance—each perfume compounded to match the mood of the volume.

Which probably means that pretty soon, some day, our progressive publishers will be advertising Best Smellers.

George Jean Nathan (Aitch L. Mencken's amusing little friend) speaking of an un-named playwright recently, said that in his Nathan's opinion, the gentleman deserved the Pulitzer Prize for persistent mediocrity because for years "the fellow" had been shooting at the moon, with a putty-blower.

Which is no improvement on The Pastor's well-known and justly celebrated line:

He aims at the stars; but he shoots spitballs.

Fruits of Fame

The New York Board of Trade things that the custom of escorting Distinguished Visitors through the Broadway Canyon from the Battery to City Hall, amid a deluge of ticker-tape and torn telephone books, is "undignified" and they have petitioned O-Be-Joyful Jimmie to put an end to the practice.

Here's hoping that Sir James vetoes the petition.

That Ticker Tape Spree from the Landin' Place to the mayor's nest has doubtless spurred many a low-geared soul to heroic achievement.

And where's the incentive to court fame if, after you've bared and bowed your bean for the laurel wreath, you can't have a waste basket emptied on your famous head?

The Old Newspaper Reporter was talking.

"Do you know," he said, "that four of the biggest 'stories' in history piled one on top of another in the course of three years?"

No, I didn't know it.

"Well, they did," he continued. "Beginin' with 1912: Snodgrass dropped th' ball in th' World Series in Boston. Rosenthal was shot as he was leavin' th' Hotel Metropole in New York. Th' Titanic was sunk on her maiden trip; an' th' Kaiser unleashed the dachshunds of war."

"Ain't noospaper work interestin'," I said.

"Boy, he replied, "you damtootin'."

None So Blind

Miss Ella Boole, whose labors as head of the Women's Christian Temperance Union has done more to keep the likker racket in place than any other force on earth, made a speech the other day.

She has no desire, she said, to study Volstead Verities as they exist today. Tammany Town's $3,000 Speaks do not exist, so far as she is concerned. What goes on in them she does not know. But she does remember the old-fashion corner saloon.

"I have seen men lined up three-deep at the bar, waiting for drinks," she said, adding, that she cannot believe that modern speakeasies are any better or any worse.

I quite agree with Miss Ella that the three-deep line-up before the old mahogany was a trifle trying at times. But she'll have to admit, herself, that when the bartender did finally get around to you, it was well worth waiting for.

Oh, Ella, Ella! If we could only get you to be reasonable!

Somnolent Broadway

One of New York's half-a-hundred columnists leaned his pear-shaped head on The Customers' shoulders the other day and filled their coat collars with damp sob lamenting how much Modern Broadway bores him.

That same evening a young woman emerging from a Wild Oat Casino in the heart of the Claude-Neon Belt, knocked her male escort cuckoo and then proceeded to scratch, bite, kick, punch, gouge and otherwise maltreat one of Police Commissioner Mulrooney's Boys-in-Blue.

When they got the Sub Deb to the Bastile she kicked a matron into unconsciousness and gave a squad of cops, who tried to lodge her in a cell, a work-out that will last them for a year.

The pastor is still waiting for the bored columnist to apologize to Broadway.

Good Program Is Enjoyed By Exchange Club

The Exchange club Tuesday had the largest attendance in months and enjoyed an excellent program that had been arranged by Dr. O. W. Robinson. Three of Paris' cleverest young musicians, Jack Bills, Floyd Garrett and John Lawrence. Bills and Garrett rendered several vocal duets, accompanied by John Lawrence, who also rendered two piano numbers. Ed Castleberry made a three minute talk on a subject chosen by Dr. Robinson, the subject being "Why I Wear Red Flannel Underwear in the Winter." It was an illuminating subject and was thoroughly covered.

The airport committee appointed at last meeting and consisting of Ray Hutt and Ben Moreing, made a report. This committee visited several sites but did not make a selection, or recommend one. People who have sites available for airports are few and far between, it was stated.

Visitors Tuesday were T. S. Reese, assistant traffic manager for the Dixie Motor Coach, Inc., and Clark Caviness, manager of the Clark Caviness Service Station. Charlie Friedman will have charge of the program for next Tuesday.

Backward Glances

By A. W. Neville

Few people in Paris remember when Frank James was a salesman in a store here, and not all of them recall that Frank James was a brother of Jesse James, the celebrated outlaw. Frank James was engaged by the late A. G. Hubbard, who had a large dry goods business here in the 'eighties, and stayed here several months. He was not so much of a salesman but his reputation drew people to the store and it was considered something of a distinction to say, "I bought this shirt from Frank James at Hubbard's."

Frank James was the older of the two brothers who terrorized the people of Missouri several years after the war between the states and Governor Crittenden finally offered a reward of $10,000 for Jesse James dead or alive. For this reward he was killed by two of his own band, the Ford brothers. Frank James was afterwards pardoned by the governor on his promise to reform and this he appears to have done. I never knew how Mr. Hubbard happened to be able to engage him, but he did not stay in Paris very long, as I recall. Frank James lived to be past 70 years old, though I do not know where he spent the balance of his life. He was about 45 years old when he was in Paris.

Tom Hinkle showed me the other day what he said was a coin of whose value he was uncertain and he wanted my opinion on it. Tom is by way of being a joker at times and the "coin" was a copper token about the size of a quarter and stated in lettering thereon that it was good for one drink at McLeod's Saloon. It was a real old timer, and in its day was worth 15 cents, being given in change for a quarter to a man who took a drink alone instead of inviting a friend and spending the whole quarter. It brought up old memories.

J. B. McLeod was an early and prominent citizen of Paris. He kept tavern, as hotels were often called then, and in practically all taverns there was a bar where drinks were sold. McLeod's hotel was on West Clarksville street, now Grand avenue, at Nineteenth, and had not been built long when the fire of 1877 took it. There was no insurance and McLeod was practically ruined for the time. When I came to Paris he was keeping the Peterson hotel on the south side of the square and Capt. J. O. Ewing was the day clerk. There was no saloon in connection with that hotel but one next door to it. Mr. McLeod later went to Dallas and built a hotel there and died just as it was completed.

Kellogg Is To Begin Sampling Campaign Here

C. L. Murrie, representative of the Kellogg Sales Company, will begin a sampling campaign in Paris on Kellogg's Corn Flakes Wednesday at noon. Mr. Murrie will be assisted in the work by Thomas Graham, Orville Arnold, Robert Grant and Gerald McFarland all students of the Paris junior college.

This campaign according to Mr. Murrie is to be different from the sampling usually done. Each housewife is to be given a full size package of Kellogg's Corn Flakes free and no soliciting is to be done by the young men who will call at every house in the city and present a package of this favorite breakfast cereal.

Retail grocers in the city are cooperating with the Kellogg Sales organization and Mr. Murrie says that they all have full stocks of strictly fresh, genuine Kellogg's Corn Flakes on hand and are in position to supply the demand that will result from the trial of these sample packages.

Diet and Health

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D., Author of THE HUMAN B

Dr. Clendening

Sunstroke is caused by a profound disturbance of the heat-regulating mechanism of the body. There are many degrees of it. Heat exhaustion is a milder form which occurs in workers in heated rooms or factories, such as stokers, roofers, miners, etc. The symptoms are muscle cramps, dizziness, weakness, pallor and profuse perspiration.

Sunstroke is more severe and actually overwhelms the heat regulating center. The onset may be sudden and catastrophic with instant death. More often there are premonitory symptoms of headache, dizziness, nausea, disturbances of vision.

It may be put down as a summer axiom that anyone who is exerting violently on a hot day and who feels a headache gradually growing worse, should go indoors in a dark room, loosen the clothing, apply cool water to the face, head and hands, and rest until the headache is gone.

Sunstroke causes not only a great change in temperature, but profound circulatory collapse. The victim will be found to have a startlingly high temperature—109 or more. I once saw a man who, after death from sunstroke, retained a temperature in the body of over 108—this an hour after death. The pulse is rapid and weak. The heart fluttery. The skin pale and dry.

One attack makes the victim susceptible to others. Loss of memory is frequently noted after a sunstroke.

Treatment consists in reducing the temperature of the body and increasing the tone of the heart and circulation. The first thing to do is to remove the patient to a cool place. As soon as possible get all the clothes off.

Water is the sovereign remedy here. It is best not to have it too cold at first on account of the shock. Ice baths, such as are often practiced, have not as good results as tepid or cool water. The water should be cast on the body with some force. Thus a hose sprinkle or water dashed on the patient with a bucket is a treatment.

Such emergency treatment should be known to everyone who has to spend the summer in some part of the world. It is all that is necessary before the doctor comes.

QUESTIONS FROM READE

An interesting letter on reducing is at hand. The writer's observations are sound, but I cannot answer her question. It is that people gain to a certain point and then no matter what they do go no higher.

"Practically, as well as theoretically, your figures on reducing are correct. Ten years ago I took a winter dieting by the method you suggest, and by the use of a calorie chart and a special measuring spoon used in preparing and in serving meals, I could calculate my loss so surely, so evenly, were not necessary to say I lost the required amount. The quarter pound a day is most convenient from the "comfort" viewpoint, although it does not prolong the dieting period.

"What I'm wondering—is there some scientific reason why, when I gain the extra 20 or 25 pounds which I do when I stop dieting, why I don't continue to gain in weight? I can eat any amount of fattening foods after I reach my normal pounds and still remain at the same figure. Why don't I continue to gain 10, 20 or 30 pounds as time goes on? Why, when I reduce from 140 can't I start eating normally and remain at that weight as I do when I reach 105 and continue to eat without regard for consequences?

Editor's Note: Four pamphlets and four articles by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin for each pamphlet and 2 cents in coin for each article, with a self-addressed stamped envelope, to Dr. Logan Clendening in care of this paper or Central Press Association, 1013 East Twelfth street, Cleveland, O. The pamphlets are: "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes" and "Feminine Hygiene." The articles are "Normal Diet," "Diet of the Expectant Mother," "Tuberculosis" and "The Atonic Abdominal Wall."

BUILDING

By Mrs. Agnes Lyne

Our neighbors have been building a house this summer and our children, who have watched it going up, have had as much joy out of it as those who will live in it are likely to have.

The children stood by when the first big hole for the foundation was being dug in the green hillside. They went with the men who lifted into the wagons field stones and brought them to the building place.

They rode on the trucks that carried cement and brick and sand and iron beams. They watched the man who ran the concrete mixing machine and even were allowed to pull the lever once or twice. They saw the field stones which they had helped to bring in set in cement to form the rising walls of the house.

They saw the water pipes be laid and at home talked pro slonally of "pressure", "inta and "wiping a joint." They wa ed the workmen figure out proper angle for the cellar st and saw the electric wires c ningly laid through the partiti of the inside walls.

Our neighbor's house has b the best sort of education. F it our children have learned hundred interesting facts ab the planning and materials labor which must go into a ho

They got an inkling of the riety of industries by which make a living. Through their terest and pleasure in seeing by day a building rise before th eyes, they developed a real res for work and achievement. Washington Daily Letter

WASHINGTON—Spain is one of the places where those who worry over the ultra radical tendency of the times undoubtedly have some real reason for their anxiety.

For 50 years, at least, a substantial substratum of old-fashioned anarchism has underlaid anti-governmental activities there. It was a school of thought which was stronger under Alfonso than anywhere else in the world—not communism of the Russian type, but hostility to any rulership whatever. Communism may have tinged it since the Moscow regime's establishment, but it is impossible that the earlier philosophy can have been absorbed by it completely.

It is surprising that it did not manifest itself sooner following Alfonso's departure. Probably its disciples were taken by surprise and required time to consolidate.

In one respect it rivals communism—it is fully as anti-clerical. Recognition, however, that the Spanish church has been something quite distinct from a religious institution, should not be interpreted as hostility to Catholicism. Wholly independent of its spiritual function, it has been a vested interest and a most oppressive one. It was estimated on reliable authority 20 years ago that even then it owned approximately 20 per cent of the national wealth. It engaged in many lines of business and industry, from small retailing to the operation at that time (I do not know whether this still continues) of the most important Spanish transoceanic steamship line. Being tax free, it naturally was a gravely disorganizing economic influence.

The development of sentiment adverse to Alfonso personally was to have been expected, both in itself and as a concomitant of the outbreak of anti-clericalism. The king has been no such popular character as has been represented. The liking for him was limited to a small circle, but it was the circle which most freely expressed itself.

There was considerable individual liberty in Spain, but little

LOVE, PREFERRED

THE ROMANCE OF A BUSINESS GIRL

CHAPTER 13

Mary left the office the following day at twelve o'clock, sharp. She had no time to lose. As she went out into Wall Street with the flow of hurrying humanity, she became a small drop of a mightly rushing, torrential river. From every angle small rivulets flowed out to join the vast stream whose main current took one direction, although there were small, conflicting currents that formed whirlpools and eddies over the black surface.

Carried along by the impetus of the current, Mary swung down into the subway station off Broadway—now the stream tumbled and roared down flights of steps, as over swift, rocky rapids—on through the flood gates. Like water backing up behind a dam and being slowly released through its sluice gates, the stream of people slowed and filled the space before the subway toll gates, while they gradually dropped their nickels into the slot and passed on with the deafening, incessant clank-clank of the turnstiles.

Long, almost endless trains of cars dashed and clanged into the station, stopped with a breathless gasp of brakes and opening doors to exchange their burdens and rush on again into the slender black tube in the distance.

Mary took an uptown express. Once you got into the stream that moved for a certain train, you were just carried along with it without volition on your part and if you got in the wrong stream, it was just too bad! Mary found herself standing still finally in the center of the car, nothing to which she could hold—stifled almost to suffocation, her chin shoved against a soiled coat sleeve and another arm pinning her so tightly against someone's back that she couldn't have moved if her life depended on it. As a matter-of-fact, she felt that her life very much depended upon getting out of that jam. Her hat was pushed half-way back, but even if it fell off and were trampled underfoot like a poor rabbit in a stampede of cattle, she would be powerless to lift a hand to save it. Both of her arms were pinned to her sides as in a vise. The train flashed on—through long stretches of utter blackness and intermittent flashes of bright spaces that were local stations. The pressure about her was released a little at the first station—but only momentarily—for the new passengers took the places of those who had left. It was not until they were well uptown that Mary could get to a strap and straighten her twisted clothes. The heat was intense, the air nauseating.

Coming out of the subway station on Forty-third street, she crossed Madison and on over to Fifth avenue in the crisp bright air of the November day. It was a relief to be out of the earth's dark interior. Here, the streams of humanity flowed up and down, too; but in colorful, more leisurely, more joyous aspect. It was not the black, surging tide of a torrent rushing bodily in one direction. More like the jubilant array of holiday barges floating upon the water of a slow-moving canal.

The shop windows beckoned invited, lured, with their gorgeous beauty, their bizarre effort to entice. Shop windows on Fifth avenue and Fifty-seventh street always made Mary wish for all the money in the world. Money with which to command and hold the brimming, tantalizing, exquisite loveliness. Yet she would not have taken it had it been offered to her. She often had visions of one day deserving the right to invade and explore such shops but never for a moment did she dream impossible dreams of a fairy god-mother coming to her assistance or a magician opening up those magic doors to her by some mysterious abracadabra.

At the moment her problem was to select from some very much less exclusive shop, and from among a bewildering maze of impossibles, a gown that would look like it might have come from Paul Poiret direct.

Mary had a method for this. First she would walk up the avenue for blocks on one side then down on the other side; looking at the windows, making mental notes and comparisions. Then she would dodge into a cross street or a department store, or a "popular-priced" dress shop, and select the nearest thing to her choice of the exclusive models she had seen.

It was quite an ordeal. Cryptic, impertinent saleslgirls insisted upon showing her things no exclusive designer in his wildest flights of fancy could conceive, any colors but the ones she specified and sizes she never could wear.

Once, walking south on Fifth Avenue, she looked up to see that which made her catch her breath sharply. Against a background of foaming gray clouds, on which the sunlight reflected in shafts of iridescent colors, the dirigible tower of the Empire State Building outlined its skeleton silhouette of steel. Never had she seen a more striking study of the city's silhouettes, and the beauty of it held her for several contemplative moments.

Then she again turned her eyes toward the earth and continued her quest for beauty in the very material but necessary form of a dress.

At last, she found the very thing—a sea-green and silver lame, cut on simple, flaring lines that gave her distinction. There was a short bolero jacket wrap with just a touch of fine fur on the cape-like flares that suggested sleeves, and a deep, massed cluster of green velvet gardenias on one shoulder.

Silver slippers and a choker necklace of tiny sparkling brilliants completed the costume. Looking at herself in the triple pier mirror, Mary did not feel the covetous, appraising eyes of Martin Frazier upon her; rather the kind admiring eyes of Dick Baldwin. Since she had known Dick, she unconsciously selected everything through the medium of his criticism. Would Dick like this . . . would Dick think that looked well . . . If Dick were selecting this, what would be his choice? She decided he would like the green and silver lame. So gorgeously simple. It fitted her perfectly, no alterations were necessary. Freighted with her purchases, she made the long, tedious journey home, while she mused upon the incongruity of the situation. Like a mere errand boy, she went home by L-Train, ferry and the sooty train. She would return in state, clothed as no queen of the past could have fancied herself; transformed in a few hours from a plain office girl into a resplendent lady. It was a little absurd that she should step from the almost shabby duplex house, where she shared one cramped room with Bonnie and a minute bathroom that served five—into a custom-built limousine driven by a man in plum-colored and gold-braided livery that blended harmoniously with the soft, gleaming mauve of the motor car.

She told herself that she never should have given in to Frazier, even to please and assist her employer. After all, her position did not involve evening entertainment of the firm's clients. It was enough to have fallen so hopelessly in love with Dick Baldwin who was an aristocrat, a university man and already a business man of importance who would reach the top of the ladder. That was aspiring enough for plain, proletarian, ambitious little Mary Vaughn.

Yet there was a thrill she could not deny in her preparations for the evening. She was too excited to eat anything with the family—so early. She would dine at eight o'clock that night. Frazier was sending his car for her and would meet her at his hotel. She was glad that he had been considerate enough not to come all the way for her. How discreet and—just right.

Bonnie went into raptures over the new clothes, a covetous gleam in her eyes. But there was nothing she could do about it—now.

So Mary had a new B. F.! her thoughts ran, triumphantly. Dick should just know about this, so he should!

Three Sororities Name Candidates In Princess Race

Miss Dorothy Brinley has been announced as candidate from Sigma Phi Gamma sorority in the race for the title of Princess Khalid. Miss Myrtle Ann Ezell, candidate of Tau Upsilon Chi, and Miss Augusta Griffis from Beta Tau, were the first two candidates announced. Later candidates will be forced to show speed, for the friends of these three young ladies are very active, and many thousands of votes have already been pledged.

The advance sale of tickets, as well as the extensive preparations that have been underway for several days, are indications of the success of the carnival. The automobile displays, and the contests in connection assure vivid interest in this feature, while the free features; including vaudeville, minstrel, music, and the coronation of Princess Khalid, promise entertainment for all.

The wild man, the performers in the Horse Fair, and the keeper of the country store join the other concessionaires, and the members of the Grotto, in inviting you to come out and have a royal good time. The Wise building on South Twentieth street, Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week.

Beautiful but Far From Dumb

Beauty is merely one of the attributes of this lovely German girl, Fraulein Gina Falkenberg, of Berlin. In addition to being Germany's woman golf champion, she holds the amateur championships for swimming and hurdling, a record that explodes the "beautiful but dumb" fallacy beloved of our cynics.

Coffee Roasting Plant Is Newest Addition In Paris

A coffee roasting plant is to be the newest business institution in Paris, and will be located at 57 Clarksville street, next door to the City Baking company. The proprietors of the business are B. C. Peyton, who came to Paris from Bogata and Ed King, for years a traveling salesman for the Paris Grocer company.

Modern machinery is now being installed at the location on Clarksville street. A Burns power roaster and coffee grinder of the latest type, will be a part of the equipment, having a capacity of 1,000 pounds daily. Mr. Peyton will have charge of the manufacturing end of the business and Mr. King will be the salesman.

A large stock of green coffee is now on hand, and it is probable that the plant will be in active operation within a short time, Mr. Peyton stated Tuesday.

Says Merchants Can Stimulate Trade Revival

"Retail merchants, through the suggestion selling of attractive merchandise, well decorated windows, constructive advertising, and intelligent sales effort, can contribute more to the return of business prosperity than all of the theorists, analysts, and critics combined," recently said J. C. Penney, prominent figure in merchandising and dairying, who is making an extended tour of the country in the interests of better business.

"We have had an avalanche of critics; critics of governmental administration, critics of business organization, critics of moral standards, critics of everything in the world.

"I believe one of the best things we could do as a nation at the present time, would be to subject the critics themselves to a certain amount of criticism. Their tendencies have been to tear down, and yet they have offered nothing in the way of how to rebuild.

"They have succeeded in getting us nervous without making us work.

"A study of savings banks in leading banking centers, shows a most unusual amount of money being deposited. It may or may not be the best policy for the individual, during the time of economic readjustment, to put all his money into savings. It depends on whether he can get better net returns through interest paid by savings banks, or through increased activity based on increased buying with its authentic upward influence on payrolls.

"The intelligent spending of money, changing it into productive work has never failed to bring increased manufacturing and selling activity."

New Orleans Cotton

NEW ORLEANS, May 19. (AP)—Cotton was fairly active Tuesday with rather broad price fluctuations. The general tone was steady except in the late trading when the market broke sharply and closed 7-11 points down for the day.

Lower cables than due and favorable overnight weather caused an easing in prices of 11-12 points in the first hour but as stocks were fairly steady and the weather map indicated some unsettled weather, the market recovered later in the morning. Shorts covered owing to the improved technical position and by the time demand was satisfied, prices had advanced 19 to 20 points from the lows.

After mid-session prices dropped sharply in sympathy with weak stocks and made new lows 25 points under the highs as stop-loss orders were uncovered. Covering caused a rally of 6 points at the end and the close was steady at net losses of 7-11 points.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK, May 19. (AP)—The brakes were applied to the stock market's decline Tuesday.

Although many prominent issues touched new lows during the irregular price movement, strenuous selling pressure was absent and enough short covering and investment support filtered in to give the list a steadier tone. The composite embracing 90 issues closed unchanged, despite the break by the utility group to a new 1931 minimum.

The market was dull on the numerous rallies, but the upward movement filled as much time as the declines. Rails showed to much better advantage, notwithstanding the poor April earnings statement by Union Pacific. The weakest section in the decline of the last hour was the amusements and merchandising issues, but there was a flurry of covering at the close. Sales totaled 2,800,000 shares, the largest volume since May 1.

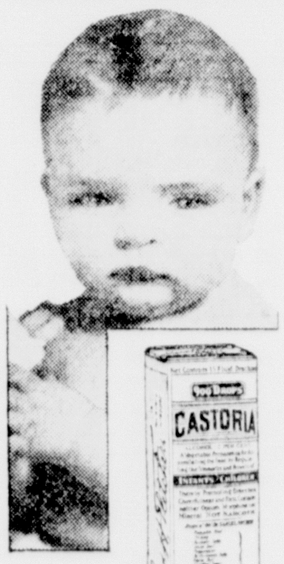
Truck and Coupe Crash; None Hurt

As a truck attempted to pass a coupe on state highway No. 5 about three miles east of Honey Grove 4:45 o'clock Tuesday afternoon the two cars collided. The truck went into the ditch on the left of the road and the coupe turned over. No one was hurt.

The truck, driven by Jack Foster of Clarksville was attempting to pass the coupe when it turned into a drive on the left side of the road. The collision caused the coupe to turn over in the ditch but did not hurt the driver or his brother, Fred and Harry Buchanan. The load of oats which Foster was hauling from Sherman was scattered over the ditch.

The truck was crushed while the coupe was wrecked, having its top torn off.

WHEN CHILDREN CRY



CHILDREN often cry for no apparent reason. Many times we can't guess what is wrong. The crying may mean a touch of colic; the little bowels may be sluggish—or some other upset. It may mean any of the common little ailments that children suffer. To bring quick comfort to your little one, give a few drops of Castoria. Most upsets of children are soon soothed away by this pleasant-tasting remedy that children all love.

In five million modern homes, Castoria is a mother's first thought when a child is out of sorts, feverish, cross, doesn't eat right or sleep right. When bad breath, coated tongue, or languor tells of constipation. These five million wise mothers know that children should never be given stronger medicines meant for the fully developed systems of grown-ups. Castoria is gentle—safe, yet always thorough and effective for a child of any age. It may be given to the tiniest infant for any little upset. When buying, look for the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher on wrapper.

33 PIANOS LOANED FREE

Thirty-three Pianos (Grands, Players and Uprights, both new and used instruments) will be placed in homes of Paris and vicinity, and they may be used until we need them—which will be an indefinite time. This offer is caused by lack of floor space, due to the reason we are overstocked and a larger demand now for certain styles of Grand and Upright Pianos. Our warerooms are crowded and other Pianos constantly arriving are taxing our floors to the utmost. We must have the room. Our entire stock has been priced at greatly reduced figures, and any one contemplating the purchase of a Piano in the next few months cannot afford to miss the opportunity. All Pianos not sold outright will be placed in the homes of families who are interested in owning a Piano in the immediate future and for the valuable advertising we will receive by having good families use them. We reserve the right to select the homes in which these Pianos are to be placed.

Positively No Charge For Anything

No catrage, no rent or any expense whatever. No phone orders. You must call at the store to make your selection. No matter if you live out of town, you are just as welcome to one of these instruments as those residing right in the city. There are no strings to this offer, which comes but once in a lifetime.
